REMARKS.

The lamb business is now in full blast, butchers are not now dependent upon the West for their supply. They can fill up to their utmost capacity from Canada and the New England States. We cail prices on lambs rather low when good 70 pound flocks can be bought for 5 cents a pound. Butchers send their agents into the country with certain price specified to pay, and of course countrymen have to submit or keep their flocks. We think it would be well to hold them back to a certain extent if possible. The calf market from this out, will be in a fair position as the supply will naturally decrease. Cows do pay very well; too many on the market to realize good results.
